at the Marketplace!

When should I order my books?

The earlier you order, the more chances you have to find the best deals. It's recommended that you order 2-3 weeks before the term begins.

What is the Marketplace?

The Marketplace is where students and others across the nation buy and sell books from each other at discounted prices. You can save an average of 60% off when you order a Marketplace book. Please note, Marketplace items do not qualify for free shipping.

Payment:

Check out with any major credit card, debit card, or prepaid credit card. Students may also use their PayPal account or Apple Pay to check out. Approved financial aid book vouchers can also be used for payment.

Shipping:

Various shipping methods and time frames are offered. Orders over $49 qualify for free economy shipping (excluding Marketplace items).

Can I deliver my books to campus?

If you live on campus, yes your textbooks can be shipped to campus and picked up in the mailroom located in Richards Hall. Use the following address: 467 Franklin Street, Bloomfield, NJ 07003.

Track your delivery status:

Use the Order ID number in your confirmation email to check delivery status under 'Track' on the website.

Return your books:

Most new and used books can be returned for a full refund as long as it's within 30 days of the order. eBooks can be returned within 14 days. Marketplace items are non-returnable. Items ineligible for return are marked "non-returnable" at checkout. If you miss the deadline to return or you ordered a book that is not returnable, you can always sell your book on the Marketplace. Check the website for full details.

Sell your books:

Visit the "sell" page on the website to list your books for sale on the Marketplace. You can sell any book, not just textbooks, and you get to name the price. After posting a book, wait for a student or book seller to buy it and then pack it up with the provided mailing label and send it out.
